

Professor Maurice Mendelson QC

Professor Maurice Mendelson QC, barrister at Blackstone Chambers, specialises in public international law including international litigation and arbitration and negotiations with governments. His work covers most branches of this subject including the Law of the Sea, boundary and sovereignty issues, investment protection, diplomatic and state immunity and human rights. He is Emeritus Professor of International Law at University College London and held its Chair of International Law (1987-2001). He has been a Visiting Professor at universities in the United States, Europe and other parts of the world.